LONDON, Ohio, March 10.-Former Gov. James M. Cox last night, in the presence of the Madison County Wilson Club, tossed his hat into the ring as a candidate for the governorship. He was the principal speaker at the banquet held in the Methodist Church, responding to the toast, "The Democracv." Mr. Cox said:

Will Soon Begin to Prepare for Strenuous Outdoor

BY H. C. BYRD.

Two local institutions will be repre sented tomorrow night in the Meadow brook indoor track and field meet in Philadelphia. St. Alban's School will send a small squad to take part in the events for individuals, and the Catholic University is to run a relay race against Lehigh University.

While one or two others may be carried on the trip the nucleus of the St. Alban's squad will be Maxam, Brewer and Carter. The first two mentioned will take part in all the dash events, while the latter is entered in the middle distances. Coach George Green expects all three of these men to do well in any scratch events in which they run. They may be handicapped too far in the handicap races to accomplish much, but even in that case Carter may show remarkably well. Brewer and Maxam are among the best scholastic sprinters in the country, and should have almost an even chance against any college or club men who may compete against them in the open competition.

Catholic University's relay team was picked the other night after trials at the Arcade. Sullivan, G. Horne, Keene and Field are the four men who will run for the Brooklanders and Coach Mulligan expresses the opinion that they have an even chance to win from Lehigh, as the men are in better condition now than at any previous time this season.

St. Alban's and C. U. Entered Coffey's Adviser Says Moran Is Most Dangerous Man Jess Has Faced.

NEW YORK, March 10 .- George Engle was an interested spectator during Jess Willard's daily setting-up exercises yesterday. Engle is the man who coached Jim Coffey against Frank Moran in their two thrillers at Madison Square Garden.

Engle watched Jess with the practiced eye of a fistic connoisseur. When it was all over Engle spoke up right pert; "Moran has more than an outside here with high hopes, ambitions, good chance. Indeed, he is the most dangerous man that Willard has ever faced. and that doesn't except Jack Johnson hitter that Moran is.

"Those who were associated with Frank in his earlier fights haven't the least conception of the improvement in the man. His clean-cut victories over Coffey have been stamped by some as more or less lucky achievements, especially the last one, in which Jim Coffey came within an ace of skimming through for the decision.

"But Moran, with the coolness of a Gans, wore down his man punch by punch, and when Coffey's knees began to sound the William Tell Xylophone overture, over went the Michael Strogoff, and Billy Gibson's heart almost stopped beating. I want to say right now that Jim Coffey is a far greater boxer than he is given credit for, and in beating him Moran has convinced me is is a fighter. I've watched Willard's every move and I don't hesitate in saying that if he doesn't speed up his right-hand punch, Moran's going to beat him to the cross as sure as you're alive."

Willard worked hard. Especially were the work-outs with Rodel and Monahan spirited. Monahan's lips were cut and puffed when his two rounds' grind with the champion was over. Monahan fought as though he had a chance to win the title.

Willard seemed to enjoy the rumpus, for he mixed merrily at every opportunity.
